

NATIONAL ESTATE OF SAINT-CLOUD

Historical park and garden of the former royal and imperial residence.

Once a privilege of Philippe d'Orléans, the younger brother of Louis XIV, the National estate of Saint-Cloud no longer boasts a Château, which was destroyed in a fire in 1870, but still offers 460 hectares of gardens, park and woodland which represent one of the best examples of a classical garden. Designed by Le Nôtre, it is also one of the most attractive parks to be found in the outer Paris area.

Site with the "Outstanding Garden" label.
